

The World Without US What Would The World Be Like Without A U.S. Presence?

The World Without US is a controversial, feature length documentary film that asks what the implications and consequences would be if the U.S. military withdrew from world affairs.

(PRWeb via PRWeb) February 22, 2008 -- The World Without US is a controversial, feature length documentary film that asks what the implications and consequences would be if the U.S. military withdrew from world affairs.

From an isolationist nation at the end of World War One, the U.S. today has bases in over 90 countries. No other nation has been able to project military power as the U.S. does today. But is such an involvement sustainable? Despite its might, the U.S. is shrinking in terms of population and economic power in relation to the rest of the world.

First-time filmmaker Mitch Anderson asks, "What would happen should the United States abandon its present role in the international scene?" A Romanian immigrant, Anderson makes his directorial debut in this documentary that explores the question, "What if the U.S. military forces closed down their military bases around the world?" As an immigrant that fled Communist Romania for the American Dream, the United States' role in the world is a topic close to Mr. Anderson's heart.

To make this a unique and comprehensive documentary, Anderson traveled to 21 countries to find out what others think of America's military presence. Interviewing foreign affair experts and "ordinary citizens" from Europe, the Middle East, and East Asia, The World Without US explores this question by providing historical facts, real-life experiences, and reviewing the often invisible role that the U.S. military currently plays in their lives today.

Dramatic reenactments throughout the film, and Mr. Anderson's pertinent questions relative to the topic at hand, provide viewers with an often invisible look at America's impact on foreign affairs. With the current backlash from the U.S. military's present role in the Middle East, Mr. Anderson's film shows viewers that U.S. military support is not taken for granted and that, contrary to popular belief, many foreign countries welcome the United States' aid.

"During the last few years, I heard a range of opinions on America's role in the world, from love to hate, from disappointment to over-idolization. However there was a common denominator to all opinions. It seemed that everyone is still expecting America to do something," states Anderson. "The World Without US was my attempt to discover what would happen if instead, the U.S. simply withdrew and did - nothing."

See the trailer on: www.theworldwithoutus.com.

For more information, please contact Jaclynn Robinson at: (214) 517-8803
Anthony Mora Communication, Inc.

###

Contact Information

Jaclynn Robinson

Anthony Mora Communications

<http://www.theworldwithoutus.com>

(214) 517-8803

Online Web 2.0 Version

You can read the online version of this press release here.

PRWebPodcast Available

Listen to Podcast MP3 Listen to Podcast iTunes Listen to Podcast OGG